Ms. Willeke reviewed the information in the packet, noting that several “live” speeches have been scheduled for later in the year, though those will depend on the status of the pandemic. Mr. Ring reported that the 2020 FDS form is available on the website and in the electronic filing system; more than 500 filings occurred on the first day the form was available online with an additional 1,700 filed since. This represents 15 percent of the expected volume for the year. Mr. Brachman asked about the expected total number of filers for the year. Mr. Ring estimates that approximately 10,400 forms will be filed in 2021 for the calendar year 2020. He also noted that eight universities have requested 30-day extensions for filing this year due to challenges raised by working remotely.
