

The Voice of Ethics Podcast Transcript

2025 Trailer

Susan: Welcome to The Voice of Ethics, the podcast that takes you behind the scenes of the Ohio Ethics Law and the Ohio Ethics Commission and into a deeper conversation about integrity and transparency in government.

Whether you're a public employee or official, a concerned citizen, or you're just curious about the laws that promote impartiality and honesty in government, this podcast is for you.

The Ohio Ethics Law is a criminal statute established in 1973 to regulate those who work in government and to strengthen the public's confidence in those actions, decisions and expenditures. From conflicts of interest to gifts to hiring our relatives, we'll explore the laws that ensure accountability and prevent corruption at the state and local levels.

In each episode, we'll dive into real life cases, explore situations and scenarios that you could one day encounter, and talk to experts who will break down what the law means for everyone who calls Ohio home.

If you're in public service, the Voice of Ethics will give you the tools to better understand and comply with the law. But even if you're not, please join us every other week for the very best in ethics storytelling.
